Plaintiff alleges that he filed an action involving these facts with the North Carolina Industrial Commission (NCIC) on September 11, 2019. [Id. at 9; see Doc. 1-3 at 8]. In that action, Plaintiff sought compensation for the personal property Lanesboro officials lost when Plaintiff was sent to segregation there. [See Doc. 1-3 at 10-11]. Because Plaintiff is proceeding in forma pauperis, the Court must review the Complaint to determine whether it is subject to dismissal on the § 1915(e)(2). Furthermore, under § 1915A the Court must conduct an initial review and identify and dismiss the complaint, or any portion of the complaint, if it is frivolous, malicious, or fails to state a claim upon which relief may be granted; or seeks monetary relief from a defendant who is immune to such relief.

In its frivolity review, this Court must determine whether the Complaint raises an indisputably meritless legal theory or is founded upon clearly baseless factual contentions, such as fantastic or delusional scenarios. Neitzke v. Williams, 490 U.S. 319, 327-28 (1989). Furthermore, a pro se complaint must be construed liberally. Haines v. Kerner, 404 U.S. 519, 520 (1972). However, the liberal construction requirement will not permit a district court to ignore a clear failure to allege facts in his Complaint which set forth a claim that is cognizable under federal law. Servs., 901 F.2d 387 (4th Cir. 1990).

III. DISCUSSION a plaintiff must allege the violation of a right secured by the Constitution or laws of the United States and must show that the deprivation of that right was committed by a person West v. Atkins, 487 U.S. 42, 48 (1988). Plaintiff here claims that in early 2018 Defendants violated his right to fair disciplinary proceedings and, as a result, his personal property was lost. necessarily fails.

Pursuant to the North Carolina Tort Claims Act, N.C.G.S. § 143-291, et seq., the NCIC has exclusive jurisdiction to hear tort claims falling under the Act. , 242 S.E.2d 329, 333 (N.C. App. 2013). This Court, therefore, has no authority claim regarding his lost property.

Moreover, even if lost property claim did not fall within the he has an adequate post-deprivation remedy in state tort law.

See Hudson v. Palmer, 468 U.S. 517, 533 (1984) (stating that intentional deprivations of property do not violate the Due Process Clause if a meaningful post-deprivation remedy for the loss is available); Wilkins v. Whitaker an action for conversion will lie against a public official who by an claims are necessarily barred by the applicable statutes of limitations in any event. Plaintiff alleges that the events at issue occurred in early 2018. Because there is no explicit statute of limitations for actions brought pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983, courts borrow the state limitations periods for comparable conduct. See Nasim v. Warden, Md. House of Corr., 64 F.3d 951, 955 (4th Cir. 1995) (citation omitted) (affirming dismissal of § 1983 action on initial review for failure to file complaint within the applicable limitations period). North Carolina has a three-year statute of limitations for general, personal injury claims. N.C.G.S. § 1-52(5). As such, Plaintiff must have brought his claims within three years of the date the injury was suffered. Any claim Plaintiff may have had under § 1983, therefore, has long since expired. Complaint here is plainly evident. Plaintiff, therefore, has failed to state a claim as a matter of law.

Because Plaintiff has failed to state a claim for relief and because
