259 S.E.2d 464 (1979) | Cited 0 times | Supreme Court of Georgia | September 10, 1979

PER CURIAM.

The defendant was found guilty of murder and sentenced to life in prison. On appeal he contends solely that the verdict is contrary to the evidence and without evidence to support it.

The defendant's wife, an eyewitness to the murder, testified of the state crime laboratory who performed the autopsy. The defendant contends that the victim and his wife had a fight and that his wife killed the victim after he fled. This theory is not corroborated. The evidence showed further that the defendant's motive was robbery.

Review of the record tells us that any rational factfinder could have found the defendant guilty of the crime of murder beyond a reasonable doubt. Jackson v. Virginia, 443 U.S. 307 (99 S. Ct. 2781, 61 L. Ed. 2d 560) (1979).

All the Justices concur.
